

New College,
Oxford.

April 29, 1936.

Dear Don Pio,

There is a possibility that my paper on Ramón y Cajal which was read before the New York Academy of Medicine in January will be published in the Annals of Medical History. Since this is a very carefully written journal dealing with authentic history, I am anxious to present only the most interesting and the surest facts.

I am hoping that you may be able to tell me whether or not it is true, that Cajal attempted to write with his pen a description of the actual sensation of dying. I heard this story in Madrid, but I should not like to repeat it without the exact facts. If you could advise me concerning this episode I should be very grateful.

I shall send within a few days a small etching of Oxford.

With very kindest regards,

Yours faithfully,

Wm. C. Gibson.